

Propagate Scroll Events

When this property is false (which is the default) the grid handles any scroll wheel or swipe events sent to it so that they scroll the grid, but not the browser window that the grid is placed inside.

If you enable this property, these events will be propagated, which allows mouse wheel and swipe events to scroll the grid's parent window.