The grid widget allows your application to display multiple lines of data. This is the web equivalent of a subfile. In fact, if you are using ProfoundUI, you can interact with this grid in your RPG just as you would a subfile thanks to RPG:OA and our handler. Grids can contain database data, data from your server side program, and even other widgets. This flexibility gives you the ability to make your application as user friendly as possible. Because of this flexibility, the grid widget has far more properties than other widgets.
